

June 13, 2013

TEXT SIZE

|      |                   |            |              |          |                |      |      |            |           |        |       |
|------|-------------------|------------|--------------|----------|----------------|------|------|------------|-----------|--------|-------|
| HOME | Ear to the Ground | Columnists | Truthdiggers | Cartoons | Arts & Culture | Digs | Shop | Multimedia | Advertise | Donate | About |
|------|-------------------|------------|--------------|----------|----------------|------|------|------------|-----------|--------|-------|

Trending: chris hedges economy nsa politics robert scheer

Search Truthdig

MOST READ

- The Unwinding
- On DNA, Scalia was right
- Former NSA Whistle-Blower: Don't Go to the Cops
- Chris Hedges on Edward Snowden: Hero or Traitor?
- Terror Bytes: Edward Snowden and the Architecture of Oppression

MOST COMMENTS

MOST EMAILED

REPORTS

NEW On DNA, Scalia was right By Eugene Robinson

NEW Obama: Sweat the Small Stuff for Big Justice By Ralph Nader

NEW The Turkish Spring: Lawyers Rounded Up By Marjorie Cohn

NEW An Education Declaration to Rebuild America

EAR TO THE GROUND

NEW Warren Asks White House for Transparency, Christie Slow Jams the News, and More

NEW Former NSA Whistle-Blower: Don't Go to the Cops

NEW Huckabee: 'Time for Churches to Reject Tax-Exempt

REPORTS

Bill Boyarsky's Columns Obama's Elitism on Full Display

Posted on May 31, 2013

Like 208 Tweet 2

By Bill Boyarsky

I'm not surprised that President Barack Obama and Attorney General Eric Holder have been waging war on the news media. They and other members of the Obama team have always struck me as elitists who don't think really intelligent or worthwhile people would go into journalism.

That's not an uncommon view among politicians, corporate bosses, well-paid professionals and parents who fret that their daughters and sons are choosing the low-paid and scorned media business instead of law or medical school.

Understanding that helps explain the Obama administration's efforts to catch those who leaked information to Associated Press reporters and to James Rosen, Fox News' chief Washington correspondent. The Justice Department subpoenaed phone records and traced when Rosen entered and left the State Department headquarters.

These are extraordinary steps to take against journalists engaged in their daily work. A debate is now raging in the news business over whether the reporters and their sources threatened national security. Walter Pincus, veteran national security reporter for The Washington Post, wrote that whoever told The Associated Press about a CIA operation that infiltrated al-Qaida and Rosen about North Korean plans for a nuclear test "were not whistleblowers exposing government misdeeds. They harmed national security and broke the law." That's a minority view, counter to the strongly expressed opinions of a majority of journalists who believe, as I do, that the AP reporters and Rosen were engaged in legitimate newsgathering.

Many Obama fans are shocked and appalled at his administration's relentless effort to punish the sources of these stories and to use police state methods against the reporters publishing them.

I'm not. Even though I have been an Obama booster, much to the disgust of some of Truthdig's readers, I have long thought that the president and his staff hold the news media in low regard.

Obama's tightly controlled re-election campaign showed his contempt for the press. Jeremy W. Peters revealed in The New York Times in July how the Obama press office in Chicago insisted on veto power over what reporters quoted in interviews with campaign officials. "The quotations come back redacted, stripped of colorful metaphors, colloquial language and anything mildly provocative," Peters wrote. There was some of this in Mitt Romney's campaign too, but not with the efficiency and dedication of the Obama team.

AP/Carolyn Kaster

President Obama straightens his tie before he receives an honorary doctorate.

EMAIL PRINT SHARE

SIGN UP TO GET UPDATES

Your email GO

FOLLOW TRUTHDIG

- Newsletter
- Like Us
- Follow Us
- Get Our Feed

Join the new Future Fleet Campaign:...

signatures: 18,807

sign petition

start a petition | grab this widget

Advertisement

Status'

your inbox every week.

NEW The Next Step in Equality: Genderless Bathrooms

What Is Metadata?

NFL Defends the 'R-Word'

A/V BOOTH

NEW Sean Hannity's Breathtaking Hypocrisy on NSA Surveillance

Chris Hedges on Edward Snowden: Hero or Traitor?

Rand Paul Wants to Sue Government Over NSA Surveillance

Glenn Greenwald Suggests More Revelations Are Coming

ARTS & CULTURE

NEW The Unwinding
By Marc Fisher

Will There Ever Be a Great 'Gatsby'?
By Richard Schickel

The Rise of the 'Selfie'

The Race for What's Left
By Louise Rubacky

DIGS

The Questions Education Reformers Aren't Asking
Dig led by Mike Rose

Gore Vidal: His Life and Legacy
Dig led by Truthdig Staff

Even those covering the campaign at the lowest leash the Chicago headquarters held on, for instance, Boulevard in South Los Angeles. Nobody would talk to me there unless I cleared it with the local press secretary. Once I got permission, people were more than willing to tell me what they were doing. I've never encountered that sort of top down control before.

The assault on the AP and Fox News' Rosen was so egregious that even the lapdogs of the Washington press corps have been moved to indignation. Ordinarily, they submit to Obama's contemptuous treatment and take pleasure in his witty speeches at the White House Correspondents' Association dinner.

Obama's attitude, I bet, is as much cultural as it is legal.

The image of the press as something scurrilous is deeply rooted in our society. University of Southern California journalism professor Joe Saltzman, who heads USC Annenberg's Image of the Journalist in Popular Culture program, said in an interview with a faculty colleague, blogger Henry Jenkins, "When your favorite aunt asks you why would anyone go into journalism, a profession filled with arrogant, impolite reporters who invade people's privacy, make up stories and sensationalize the news, where is she getting her information? She probably doesn't know any journalists, has never visited a newsroom, and has no idea how reporters work. Yet she has very specific ideas about who journalists are and how they behave. And she learned this by watching journalists in the movies and on television and reading about them in novels."

From my years in reporting about the rich and powerful, circles Obama now travels in, I have found they feel the same as Saltzman's mythical favorite aunt. In fact, their attitude may be stronger because of class and educational biases. This doesn't just apply to Obama. The Ivy League and big corporations and law firms have provided many Cabinet and staff members for other administrations. Having gained privilege and wealth, they don't understand why an intelligent, talented person would take another course.

As Saltzman said, "Surveys continue to show that most Americans want a free press that is always there to protect them from authority, from Big Business and Big Government, and give them a free flow of diverse information. But those same surveys also show that most Americans harbor a deep suspicion about the media, worrying about their perceived power, their meanness and negativism, their attacks on institutions and people, their intrusiveness and callousness, their arrogance and bias."

Americans who feel that way might ask why a decent woman or man would go into such a business. Why would journalists try to obtain material that government officials, from the president on down, consider secret? Have they no respect for authority?

I think journalists should question authority, right from the beginning, when their first tasks are digging up hidden local police reports and crooked city hall contracts. From there, those who stick with it will go on to try to open up the secrets of the highest levels of government, an unpopular but honorable task, no matter what your aunt says.

GO TO AUTHOR PAGE

TAGS: ap ap scandal barack obama bill boyarsky campaign election elitism fox news government journalism media mitt romney

Related Entries

|   |   |  |   |
|---|---|--|---|
|   |   |  |   |
| Warren Asks White House for Transparency, Christie Slow Jams the News, and More | Sean Hannity's Breathtaking Hypocrisy on NSA Surveillance | Obama: Sweat the Small Stuff for Big Justice | Terror Bytes: Edward Snowden and the Architecture of Oppression |

SHARE THIS ARTICLE

Email to a friend

Previous item: Watergate Amnesia, the Nixonian Slur and Other Big Lies

Next item: Old Data Reveals Warming Oceans

Russia Against Napoleon: The True Story of the Campaigns of War and Peace

By Dominic Lieven
$23.73

Point to Point Navigation: A Memoir

By Gore Vidal
$17.16

Women's T-Shirt
$20

MORE ITEMS

New and Improved Comments

If you have trouble leaving a comment, review this help page. Still having problems? Let us know. If you find yourself moderated, take a moment to review our comment policy.

NASHVILLE
ON THE RECORD
THE STORIES
BEHIND THE MUSIC

watch now

abc

ALSO ON TRUTHDIG

Robert Scheer: One American Who Isn't For Sale - Robert ... 69 comments

Sales of Orwell's '1984' Soar Amid NSA Surveillance ... 22 comments

The NSA Black Hole: 5 Things We Don't Know About the ... 2 comments

Britons: 'Spy on Us' 2 comments

AROUND THE WEB

What's this?

Economist: Say Goodbye To Your Life Savings Money Morning

Billionaire Tells Americans to Prepare For "Financial ... Moneynews

Kindergarten Teacher Lets Children Touch and Taste Her ... First To Know

Beating Cows with a Wrench, Worth It? The Daily Show

120 comments • 29 reactions

Leave a message...

Best Community

Share

Victoria • 13 days ago

"Even though I have been an Obama booster,... I have long thought that the president and his staff hold the news media in low regard."

And that right there is the problem.

27 | Reply Share >

Skeptical Scott → Victoria • 12 days ago

Exactly! Still supporting someone who thinks you're a useless POS is the Battered Wife Syndrome that most so-called Liberals suffer from. It's just too hard for them to accept that they've been used and that their Left/Right Paradigm is FALSE!

9 | 1 Reply Share >

sisterlauren → Skeptical Scott • 12 days ago

So if we recognize it as a very bad and widespread case of collective national battered wife syndrome, what can we do to correct it?

In my experience, the first thing a battered wife needs is to be informed that she is being abused.

You have to realize she is heavily invested in thinking it is normal and until she sees that it is abuse to someone else, she probably won't think of it herself. So to offer that kind of support on a national level is going to take a lot. Do you have any suggestions?

7 | 2 Reply Share >

leisureprophet → sisterlauren • 11 days ago

1st step: Leave your husband.

3 | Reply Share >

Carbonman1950 → Skeptical Scott • 12 days ago

Being held "in low regard" is nothing like "thinking you are a useless POS". They may be on the same general scale, but they are very far apart.

1 | Reply Share >

Lafayette → Victoria • 12 days ago

And that right there is the problem.

---

A Progressive Journal of News and Opinion. Editor, Robert Scheer. Publisher, Zuade Kaufman.
© 2013 Truthdig, LLC. All rights reserved.